EDITORIAL POLICY

Scope: Behavior Science Research likes to publish eight kinds of papers: 1) Comparative studies—especially holocultural ones; 2) Studies of comparative method—especially holocultural method; 3) Social science bibliographies—especially annotated ones; 4) Reports of fresh data on societies in the HRAF Files—especially those in our probability sample; 5) Abstracts of Ph.D. dissertations (250 words) or M.A. theses (100 words) using HRAF data or computer programs; 6) HRAF Documentation—reports on the scientific aspects of HRAF's own work; 7) The address of a distinguished scholar to the annual meeting of HRAF's Board of Directors; and 8) FORUM—short controversial exchanges disputing issues bearing on any of the foregoing topics. Papers falling into the first four of these eight kinds occupy four-fifths of our space and are reviewed by our panel of Advisory Editors.

To Authors: We like contributions to run 25-30 typewritten pages—50 at most. Send us three copies and an abstract of 50-75 words. See last page for our style sheet.
